HANDMADE IN ENGLAND

Furniture ~ Fabric ~ Oddities

ODD is a small family-run business specialising in outdoor furniture and fabrics.

Known best for their upholstered swinging sofas - 'rockers' - ODD also has a range of fabrics - both indoor and outdoor as well as a designer collection by interior decorator Emma Grant.

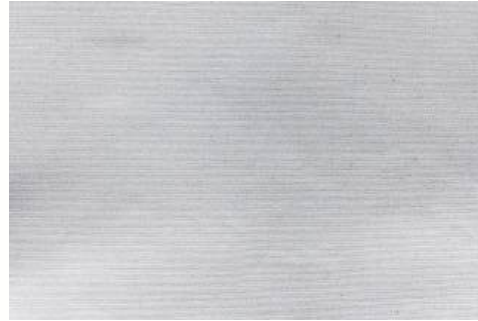

ODD is committed to British craftsmanship, working with experienced artisans across the country to create pieces of the highest quality that can be handed down through generations.

Heavy with nostalgia, the pleasure-seeking irreverence of a 1930s British summer is carried through the ODD collection, while the Emma Grant for ODD pieces bring to mind elegant garden parties from further afield and longer ago.

ODD'S ROCKERS

ODD's rockers are traditional, fully upholstered sofas modelled on an original design from the 1930s.

They are specifically designed for the outdoors - waterproof, rot-resistant - and with a little care will be handed down through generations

ODD'S ROCKERS

Care and Repair

ODD's rockers can be left outside throughout the spring and summer months. They are supplied with a protective cover, which should be worn every night and in case of any rain. This cover and the exterior of the rocker are made from our marine canvas, which is designed to withstand rain showers and is rot resistant.

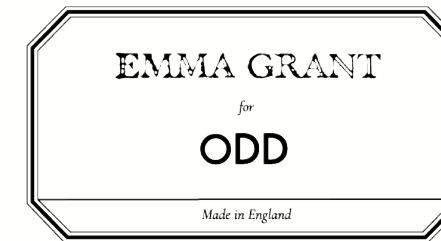

We offer repairs or replacements of all upholstered parts of your rocker, in case of damage or staining. We can also replace any lost stainless steel components from the structural frame.

The ODD Journal

oddlimited.com/journal

ODD's first designer collaboration with interior decorator Emma Grant features a collection of fabrics (both indoor and outdoor) and several new rocker designs.

The collection brings pattern for the first time to ODD's range of outdoor fabrics, aiming to offer a quality and beauty we felt was hard to come by in performance fabrics.

The fabrics were developed with the new rocker designs in mind, both drawing on historical references and Emma's own collection of antiques.

VAAS

The Vaas motif was inspired by a Dutch 18th century tin glazed ceramic Emma acquired years ago.

The 'Delft' colour-way mimics the royal cobalt blue pigment that was widely used in 18th century Delftware.

The monochrome 'Manganese' colour-way is inspired by magnesium dioxide pigment that can achieve black brown and purple in ceramics and was popularly used in late 17th and 18th century Delft pottery.

BARACCA

Baracca's inspiration is drawn from two sources:
an 18th century Portuguese metal threaded tent lining and a Spanish Manises ceramic.

These were developed respectively as a block print and watercolour then unified in Baracca's lively pattern repeat.

The fabric is available in two blues: Indigo & Mid-Indigo, inspired by the natural dye, as well as the sepia-toned Fawn.

ATLAS STRIPE

Atlas Stripe takes its inspiration from a berber textile in Emma's collection.

The broad stripes, reminiscent of Edwardian beach tents, are bordered by a North African motif which was developed as a block print to run along the stripes.

Atlas Stripe is available in Madder Red & Indigo and the softer tonal Ochre colourway, all recalling historical hues achieved using natural dyes.
